Samuel I. Goodwin, born in Lehi in 1869, served on the Lehi City Council, was president of Alpine School Board, vice-president of the State Bank of Lehi, and bishop of the Lehi Second Ward. He was employed by the People's Co-op for thirty-six years before establishing his own dry goods store, Goodwin's Golden Rule, on 13 May 1926. The Goodwin home, built on his grandfather's pioneer property, was started in 1896. Additions were built onto the home until the early 1920s when it was completed as is. This home, warmly remembered by surviving Goodwin children (there were nine in the family), has six bedrooms. When Goodwin retired in 1946 and moved to California the home was purchased by LeRoy and Edna Gammon who raised another large family on the premises.
